STAGE ROUND-UP

MAX NORTH'S TELEREVIEW

Len's happy no fooling

AT the age of 49, Len Austin and the wife he married 26 years ago have just acquired a home. They are as delighted as children with a new toy.

For Len is a circus clown—one of the three Austins—and they have lived in caravan trailers all their married life.

The Austins, one of the most famous clowning families in the world, comprise two brothers, Len, Alby, aged 61, and Len's 24-year-old son, Michael.

The orchard

They are among the clowns appearing at Manchester's Belle Vue Circus, who will talk about themselves in ABC's "Tempo" programme "The Ring of Laughter" tomorrow.

The home Len and his ex-Bluebell girl wife have bought is a £4,000 bungalow at Wickford, Essex, with its own orchard—and even a telephone.

Len told me: "It's wonderful and we're thrilled to bits about it. After you've lived in caravans all your life you get a tremendous kick out of having your own letter-box for the first time.

"We can vote now, just like everyone else. We've got a bathroom and a garden and a drive. Now when we have finished a season we have somewhere to go."

But with his clowning commitments, Len and Mrs Austin will be living there only five months in the year. The other seven will be spent in a caravan.

The memories

The Austins are one of the oldest circus families as well as one of the best known.

They ran their own circus at the beginning of the century, and the parents of Len and Alby performed for Queen Victoria while members of Sanger's Circus.

Len and Alby are also much travelled. They have worked all over Europe, and one of Alby's most vivid memories is of a visit from Al Capone when he was appearing at Chicago's Coliseum in 1928.

He said: "Capone was a circus fan and after the show he came backstage with his bodyguard to shake hands with the artists. I was overawed."

Golden day for Sarah

☆ Appearing in the star - studded company of ATV's "Golden Drama" production tomorrow is that attractive off-beat actress Sarah Miles.

She will play opposite Sir Laurence Olivier in an excerpt from "The Recruiting Officer," the same comedy they appeared in together six months ago when she joined the National Theatre.

Sarah, aged 21, told me: "I was absolutely scared stiff at the idea of joining the National Theatre, but after a few weeks I settled down."

Off-beat life of a Nitwit

By GUY MEYLER

IT'S ridiculous, but when that monocled epitome of an English cavalry major Wally Stewart opens his mouth to speak the accent is as unmistakably French Canadian as Montreal's Place Ville-Marie.

The nearest the 56-year-old jitwit ever got to hearing the trumpets sound The Gallop as as a rider of a pony in a circus wild west show.

As co-leader with Sid Millard of the zany Nitwits whose eposterous orchestra per nightly making strong men eep with laughter at Manchester's Opera House, Wally as a fittingly off-beat background.

Born of a French Canadian other and Scots Canadian ther—both circus acrobats, in English-speaking Ontario, Wally ran away from his circus home at the age of 14 "because the family act was getting too dangerous."

● BATTLEDRESS

That was in Chattanooga, Tennessee. Soon he was in New York, where he switched to a dance and comedy routine that brought him to England in 1935 and found him in Paris at the outbreak of war.

And, believe it or not, it was as long ago as the dark days of 1941 that the Nitwits were founded—as one of impresario George Black's "Stars in Battledress" troupes, formed of show business people who suddenly found themselves in uniform.

The act has remained unchanged since the end of the war when Sid and Wally formed a partnership to present it to civilians—unchanged, that is, except for its members.

● INTERNATIONAL

Only the two founders and the coloured drummer Cyril Laguey are left of the original company.

"It's not an act for young men, and most of the others reached retiring age long ago," Wally said.

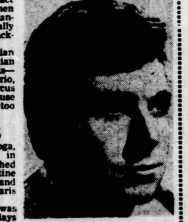

With such a long-established act there is no difficulty in "doubling up" when one of the members is absent. That is why it has been able to carry on smoothly since Christmas without Sid, who is in hospital with pleurisy.

In the years since it was founded the act has become an international box-office draw. The Nitwits have never been longer than three months out of work, and they have never taken holidays.

Said Wally: "In the summer we try to get bookings in the sunshine countries and only do one show a night.

"Most of us are married with children—and even grandchildren—and they all descend on us until we are one huge tribe."

A 'GIGGLE' STARTS IT

SINGER Peter Regan (above) is the latest new signature tune in the Dora Bryan show at Manchester Opera House, did not consider show business his career until he entered for an RAF concert "for a bit of a giggle" during his National Service eight years ago.

In his dressing room 29-year-old Peter said now: "I'd gone into a solicitor's office near our home in Burton-on-Trent when I left school and my main ambition was to become a professional footballer."

But by the time he had finished National Service he had appeared in several RAF concerts and was bitten with the stage bug.

Paris offer

Singing lessons with a local teacher and a few talent contest petitions later he was offered a summer season in Redcar, Yorkshire—and he hasn't looked wanted to do "was get out of Burton-on-Trent."

Other summer seasons, concert parties, and radio and TV work followed, and a few years ago a flood of offers resulted in 100 appearances on TV in two years.

He has now appeared in several West End musicals, and last year turned down an offer from the Paris Lido so that he could take the male lead in a Beat show at London's Talk of the Town.

Now his big ambition is to play in a successful Broadway musical

It's all happening for Mr C

IT'S a swinging weekend for that versatile entertainer Roy Castle, who stars in BBC's "Billy Cotton Show" tonight and then flies off tomorrow to Canada to do a TV show in Toronto.

He then records two further shows for Ed Sullivan in New York.

On his return in mid-February, he will start work on his own BBC series, which will be screened in the spring.

He said: "I've sometimes been criticised for being too versatile, but show business is a long-distance race and I must always look ahead.

"My eventual aim is to become a comedy actor in films. You can do so much more in films than you can in any other form of entertainment."

Roy's first film will be released next month. It is "Dr Terror's House of Horrors," in which he plays a musician, and in March he starts work on his second film, "Dr Who and the Daleks."

As well as being a hectic year professionally, 1965 promises to be a happy one on the domestic front. His wife, Fiona, is expecting their first baby in June.

Family friend

They were married 18 months ago after being introduced by Eric Morecambe while she was an understudy in the show "The Sound of Music."

"Eric couldn't resist gagging even then," Roy told me. "She's a friend of the family and she's in love with you," he said.

"Poor Fiona was so embarrassed that she fled, but I realised in those few minutes that she was the girl I'd been waiting for. We met again soon afterwards and we were married a year later."

AMATEUR STAGE

THE CHAIRS

WHETHER Ionesco's play means nothing at all or expresses a whole philosophy, a group of students from Manchester College of Art and Design at its sadness, humour, depth and unflagging interest.

This is mainly due to the acting of Juliet Cooper and David Hughes, both about 20, playing a couple who claim to have been married at least 75 years. The make-up is excellent—Miss Cooper looks toothless — but more important, both have the frailer gestures and breathless busyness of the very old.

On stage throughout the 80-minute one-act play, they have the timing of a couple of first comedians as they greet and entertain a crowd of invisible guests, laugh hysterically and fall into dreary silences.

Thomas brief and dumb, the performance of Bill Orobiej is also well done and the production by the artist Phillis Sayers is very crisp and assured

B.J.

BONAVENTURE

MYSTERY and suspense are spun out at great lengths in Sibyl Flavers' production at the Village Clubroom.

This psychological drama of a condemned young woman stranded by floods in a convent near the scene of her alleged crime is not an easy one for amateurs.

Tonight last night it sagged on fumbled lines and slack delivery.

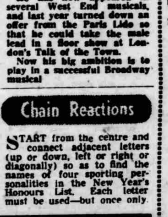

Tonight nerves may be to blame, and the production, which has some particularly attractive, if stylised groups of uncluttered sets, could pick up once the players find more confidence.

Barbara Stansfield made good use of the dramatic opportunities afforded by the role of the young woman condemned to death for the murder of her brother. Jennifer Rushworth's was the most demanding role as Sister Mary Bonaventure, the compassionately nursing nun convinced of her innocence.

There was a nice study from Alan Crawford as the slow, ambling village simpleton, with useful support from Robyn Appleton, Alan Robinson, Christine Bett, and Sheila Jones.—J A C.

HOROSCOPE
FOR TO-MORROW

ARIES (March 21 to April 19): An excellent day for travel, leisure, or sport, or for new backgrounds. Make plans for outdoor activities.

TAURUS (April 20 to May 20): Progress today if you don't allow yourself to be distracted from practical work by emotional scenes.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 20): Some past event now influences the present. Evidence can count in an emergency. It will be to your advantage to keep social knowledge to yourself.

CANCER (June 21 to July 22): An atmosphere of unrest among close partners or associates will be puzzling. There is some financial disagreement in the background.

LEO (July 23 to Aug. 23): Your intuition rings true today. Follow your hunches as far as they lead. Realise that your work and efforts depend upon faith.

VIRGO (Aug. 23 to Sept 22): Someone who has broken a promise makes a most apparently logical assume that "it never happened." Find it easy to forgive.

LIBRA (Sept 23 to Oct 22): A close partner is due for criticism or some social engagement or some entertainment in which you would rather not be involved. Avoid the situation.

SCORPIO (Oct 23 to Nov 21): Don't allow a misunderstanding with a friend to create a major rift in your relationship. Recognise that the circumstances dictate that the situation will quickly change.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov 22 to Dec 21): A break with routine will bring an emotional reward. Consider your fixed habits to discover one which has been holding up your progress.

CAPRICORN (Dec 22 to Jan 19): Not the day for false pride. If you need help or advice ask for it. Some very recent new friendship will prove helpful.

AQUARIUS (Jan 20 to Feb 18): Go out of your way today to be associated with a group of people who have mutual interests with yourself. Creative hobbies are particularly highlighted.

PISCES (Feb 19 to March 20): A written letter should confirm any promise you have made recently. Prove your sincerity by positive action of your intentions.
